The “Promote U” series is hosted by the Office of Graduate Studies each fall and spring semester. This four-part series consists of the following events:

- “On the Fly” Seminar
  - Must participate once during first year of program
  - Time commitment: 1 ½ hours
  - This informational seminar is intended to give attendees information on crafting strong, professional power introductions that can be used at conferences, interviews, and so forth.

- Editing Week
  - Must participate at least once per year
  - Time commitment: 1 hour
  - This event will provide students the opportunity to submit a hard copy of their power introductions for editing before the communication is used as part of various activities and events.

- “Pitch Perfect”
  - Must participate at least once per year
  - Time commitment: Approximately 2 hours
  - This event will provide Chancellor’s Fellows the opportunity to practice their completed power introductions with undergraduate research students from the OURE program. Set-up in a speed-dating format, this event would help students practice communicating their information to a variety of audiences. The OURE students will be provided with the opportunity to evaluate the graduate students’ presentations.

- Headshots and Recordings
  - Must participate at least once during last year of program
  - Time commitment: Approximately 1 hour
  - This event will provide Chancellor’s Fellows with the opportunity to record their power introduction for personal use. A University supported YouTube page will be created so that employers, alumni, and prospective graduate students can view these recordings.
