

Thesis & Dissertation Deadlines: Spring 2027

To have your degree awarded at the end of the Spring 2027 semester, you may complete all requirements either

- during intersession (the period between terms before the spring semester begins), or
- during the regular spring semester

This guide lists the required steps and deadlines for regular completion. If you cannot meet these deadlines, review the Summer 2027 Intersession Deadlines and notify your graduate specialist of your updated completion plans.

Missing these deadlines means your degree cannot be awarded in May and you are not eligible to participate in May 2027 commencement.

Spring Semester Dates: 1/19/27- 5/14/27

Required Step	What to Do	Deadline
Submit Early Draft for Review	Submit your document to Graduate Education for an early format review. All sections should be included, even if content is still being added. This step helps identify formatting issues early on.	February 28
Submit Final Doctoral Defense Notification Form	Doctoral students must submit the Final Defense Notification Form so the defense can be publicized. If the defense is not publicized at least 7 days before the defense, it must be rescheduled.	At least 10 days before defense
Submit Pre-Defense Document for Review	Submit an updated draft to your assigned format checker after scheduling your defense. The draft should be complete enough for your committee to review, though minor edits may still be made afterward.	About 2 weeks before defense
Hold Final Defense	Present your research to your committee at your final examination (defense). Enrollment on the exam date is required. *	April 2
Form 2/ Form 7 Received by Graduate Education	Submit Form 2 (Master's) or Form 7 (Doctoral) to report the results of your defense. The form must be approved by your department and received by Graduate Education by the deadline. It also records the approval of your final thesis or dissertation, so it will not be approved until after your final thesis or dissertation is accepted.	April 9
Submit Post-Defense Document for Review	After making revisions required by your committee and submitting Form 2/7, send your updated draft to your assigned format checker for a final format review. Before submitting, ensure all corrections are complete and formatting is double-checked. Unresolved issues at this stage can delay acceptance of your final draft and your graduation.	As soon as possible after defense and revisions are complete
Final Accepted by Graduate Education	Your format checker will send final submission instructions based on the release information on your Form 2/7. This submission becomes the official archived copy.	April 16

* If the defense occurs during intersession, the student must have been enrolled in the preceding semester/session or must enroll in one credit of Oral Exam (5040/6040) before the defense.
